The teast took place at the Pavillor, it ilrighton, and was described to me by a such a commonplace affair in this fast age, that any description thereof would very in G lray's caricatures, and among Fox's jolly associates, there figures a great noble-man, the Duke of Norfolk, called Jockey of Man, the Duke of Noriolk, called Jockey of Noriolk, in his time, and celebrated for his table explaits. He had quarreled with the Prince, like the rest of the Whigs, but a sort of reconciliation had taken place, and now, being a very old man, the Prince invited him to dine and sleep at the Pa-vilion, and the old Duke drove over from his tastle of Arundel, with his famous equilage of gray horses, still remembered in Sussex. The Prince of Wales had concecled with his royal brothers a notable scheme for making the old man drunk. Every person at the table was enjoined to drink wine with the Duke—a challenge which tho old toper did not refuse. He soon began to see that there was a conspiracy against him; he drawk glass for glass; he overthere many of the brave. At itset the first gentleman of of the brave. At last the first gentleman of ity of which you scarcely realize, owing to her perfect symmetry of proportions, and beauty of model.

Europe proposed bumpers of brandy. One of the royal brothers filled a great glass for the Duke. He stood up and tossed off the drink. "Now," says he, "I will have my carriage and so home." The Prince urged upon him his previous promise to sleep under the roof to Kenincky, not before. More especially, as Yancey, in his letter to Mr. Pryor, expressed his distrust of Kentucky, and did not think us worthy of a place in his Southays, reported the quickest trip ou hospitality." All the places being cupied, the engine not carrying any description yhl, to use a technical expression, the veler can be transported at the price of erchandise; and the conjunies, not only without any loss, but even with a certain and calculable profit, will apply to these pecial trains a lar if, the great chespness f which cannot fail of producing an innense business. By this arrangement the We take the following from the St. Louis Day fare is about one fifth the usual prices.

aunot some such plan be perfected by our silroad companies? There is six feet in the channel out to Cairo, and eight cet between Cairo and Memphis. On Friday, as we learn from the Cincinsti Gazette, the train which left the Cinanati deput for St. Louis, at 4:25 A M . ran off the track at Dethi station, ten miles rom the city. Some caule attempted to ross the track when the train was apcoaching: but one of their number was 100 slow, and failed to get out of the reach of the locomotive. The consequence was, the infortunate animal was thrown against the the locomotive. The consequence was, the 'switch gate," and the train was thrown om the track. No person was injured. The train master telegraphed to Gravelpit station for assistance, and soon a gang of workmen arrived and rendered very effective ervice in replacing the cars and locomotive. At half past nine the express train from St. Louis arrived, and the westward bound passengers were transferred to it, and went on their way rejoicing that no thing more serious than a detention of a
